Digital Church

A while back, a friend pondered whether it is possible to have a meaningful experience of church primarily through digital means.

Valaqua: A place where people express God's love

I have worked at Camp Valaqua for a total of six summers, and this summer I am back on staff after being away for a few years.

Creating a wardrobe to match your values

If you wear clothes, then you need to care about how they were made and who made them. Even if you aren't interested in "fashion."

West Hills congregation tries 'messy church'

Two years ago, West Hills Fellowship, in Baden, Ont., faced up to its small-church realities.

A rewarding experience

Connecting with children can be a rewarding experience. When someone says thank you, it feels good.

Auction raises funds for Amish private schools

Each summer, on the third Saturday of July, the Milverton Amish communities organize a large auction to raise funds for their parochial schools.

An experiment in generosity

It's been said "there's no such thing as a free lunch," but it turns out there is at Emmanuel Mennonite Church.

Singing, serving and studying

When summer comes, many churches experience a drop in attendance. But being fewer in number can be an opportunity to try new forms of worship.

12 organizations worth recognizing during Mennonite Heritage Week

At the end of May, Parliament passed a motion declaring the second week of September as Mennonite Heritage Week.

Three generations find working for MCC a blessing

Bob Lebold made his first donation to Mennonite Central Committee (MCC) when he was about 10 years old.

Expect to have your worldview challenged

Are you over 18 years old with a love for your regional, nationwide and global Mennonite church?
